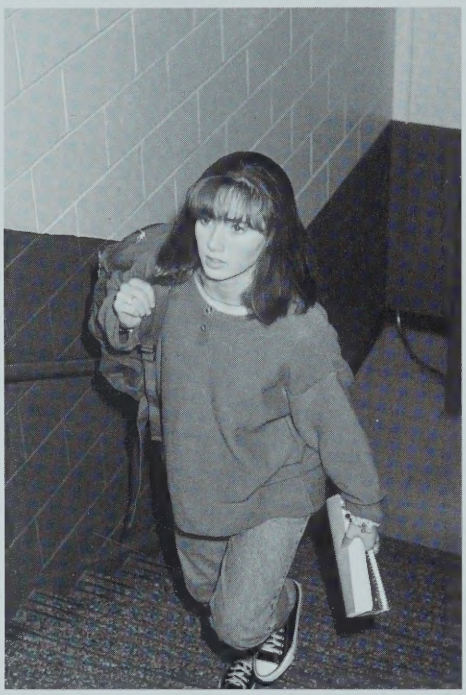
Football, soccer, and field hockey. These are just a few of the sports offered to students at MHS. Students, faculty, and the community all take pride in Mansfield's sports programs. At MHS, sports are red hot.

This support is evident by the devoted number of fans who continuously come out to games and show support for the Big Green. Also, each year, the number of students who try out for MHS sports teams increases. This is a tribute to the athletic department's tradition of excellence. In addition to all the other pressures of being a teenager in the '90's, student athletes face 2-3 hour practice sessions daily. Despite their busy schedules, many students make it a point to take Time Out.

MHS Field Hockey rocks! Cheryl Danner displays the speed that makes the team a threat in the Hock.

Cheryl Danner and Alyssa DiGiovanni share a "moment" at their lockers between classes.

Afraid she will be late for 6th period psychology, Katelynn O'Brien hurries up the stairs after third lunch.



Kindhearted David Dybes helps out a hurt friend, Michelle Miele, she is forced to hobble around on crutches.

While having dinner at Wendy's after soccer practice, Sarah Scarchilli shares the details of her latest exciting adventure with some of her friends.

Times To Remember

It wasn't all that long ago that we were walking into MHS as freshmen, united as the Class of 1996 for the first time. As we walked through the corridors on the first day of high school searching for a class we just couldn't find, our only salvation seemed to be seeing the face of an equally confused classmate. How things have changed! Four years have virtually flown by! And we now find ourselves laughing at those confused looks on the faces of this year's freshmen.

Now it's all different. We have watched our friends of past classes fill out directories, get their senior portraits taken and enjoy all of MHS's senior privileges. Now, whether we like it or not, the ball is in our court. Our time has come. Enjoy it while it lasts, these are our Times To Remember.

Wake up Sleepyhead! Brigette Garland catches some ZZZ's as her trig class winds down.

After lunch, Jonathan Pierce makes a pitstop at his locker in order to gather his books for his next two classes.

There's Still Time

Year after year, freshmen entering high school suffer the same anxiety. As a freshman opens the lobby door, the tenseness overcomes her as she realizes that she is not only opening the door to brand new faces and experiences but inevitably to a brand new person.

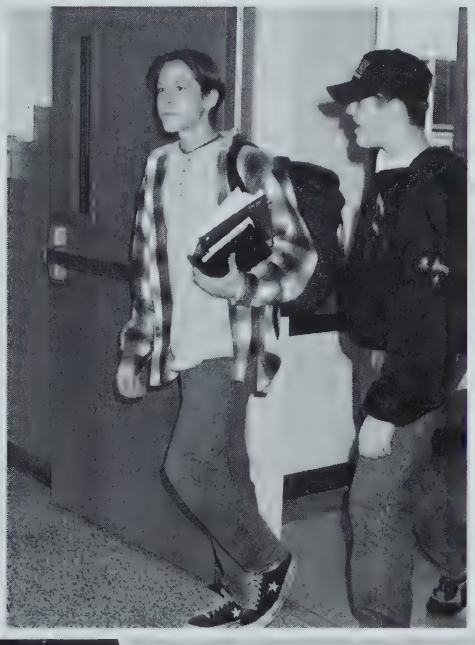
The insecurity clings to her throughout her freshmen year but miraculously begins to fade as it takes a back seat to what is going on around her. She has matured, she realizes that how she sees herself is more important than how others perceive her.

As she sits among friends and listens to Mr. Rosa's traditional speech that first day of junior year, she suddenly realizes the obvious. Her high school career is half over! As the seniors become occupied with the future, her class takes over as the new leaders of MHS. She realizes as she watches the senior class prepare to leave that for her There's Still Time.

After school, Kelly Johnson shows her silly side as she demonstrates her ballet skills to those waiting for the late bus in the lobby, the hub of all activity after 1:57 p.m.

Keagan Barre flies around the gym during a 5th period handball game proving that freshmen play hard or don't play at all!

The hardworking Saraan Mahmoud rushes to finish filing the magazines in the storage room of the MHS library before the period ends.



After a lunch in the cafeteria, Jason Colby heads to English class on a full stomach ready to take on Shakespeare's MacBeth.

Surprise! We caught Teacher/ Athletic Director extraordinaire Ms. Conaty in the office as she tied up some loose ends before the start of the soccer game.

Time After Time

In the art room, Ms. Wilhemson instructs her Art I class in drawing techniques.

Preparing his students for the next meet, Mr. Barnes fields questions from the members of the Math Team.

"Just for the taste of it". Mrs. Donahue enjoys a Diet Coke along with her lunch at the International Expo in Boston.

On a typical day after school, you can see Mrs. Carli assisting one of her sophomores in editing his paper on MacBeth in the Writing Center. As you turn the corner, you hear Mrs. Johnson calling the weekly meeting of SADD to order. Down the hall comes Sr. Morales and a member of the senior class laughing about the antics of the AP Spanish class. As you enter the main office, Mr. Albertini is with a student discussing future plans.

Most teachers work long after the 2:25 bell rings. Their hardwork and dedication serves as an inspiration to us the students. They challenge us to have pride ourselves and the school .

Commitment is the hallmark of the faculty at MHS. Many students think of them only as classroom teachers. However, the faculty members are involved in many other aspects of the high school activities. They serve as our advisors, coaches, role models, and friends and are there for us. . .Time After Time.

At the first SADD meeting, Kevin Barre makes his final selections during the election of officers.

As a rookie member of the Math Team, Jared Goldman ponders his first step in solving a difficult equation.

Hey chief. Editor of the yearbook, Kristin Conti, picks up the senior directories which have been turned in at the last minute.

Jason Martel is caught red-handed as he studies his geometry during a Wednesday evening orchestra rehearsal.

After Hours

Riiiinnnnggggggg! It's 1:57 pm and there's the bell signaling the close of seventh period. Students are making a beeline to their lockers, buses or cars. Although the buses have pulled out, the hallowed halls of MHS are nowhere near empty. For a fair amount of the student body at MHS, real life begins after the bell.

The "club scene" at MHS covers a wide range of interests including everything from learning about foreign cultures to promoting a non-violent high school community. There are also organizations which campaign against drunk driving as well as ones which explore the world of science. While the yearbook, newspaper and writer's forum cover the literary aspects of MHS society, the math team meeting offers oppportunities for the analytical mind.

No matter what one's passion, there is sure to be something that sparks interest. Whether it's working on the yearbook until late in the evening or solving equations at the latest math meeet, there is always something that keeps everyone busy After Hours.

Laying it on. Matt Miller admires his ceramic handiwork after painting on a layer of glaze.

Time To Move On . . .

Through the years, we've had many experience in our classes, on the field, and in after school activities. All have been memorable because we have shared these times, both the good and the bad ones, together. Now, the future has arrived. Although it may be tough to face, it is our turn to leave Mansfield and face new challenges. Now for the Class of 1996 it is Time to Move On.

Going with the flow. Between classes, Matt Robinson follows his usual route as it is the quickest way to his 3rd perod class.

It's not that funny! Camera shy Nicole Longever giggles when she is caught by a yearbook photographer at the end of the day as she heads to her car.

Finish up. The bell rings and Laura Donovan looks up as she tries to finish the rest of her exam quickly.

Sports

Winning ways

This was a year of many firsts for the MHS varsity soccer programs—unthinkable firsts. In their 1995 seasons, the Boys' and Girls' soccer teams both gained tournament berths, making them the first ever in Mansfield's history. Their success, coupled with the town's growing interest in the sport, should open a doors for Mansfield in the Hock.

Their success can be attributed to their optimism and positive attitudes toward one another. Elissa Noonan praised the effort of her teammate Kendra Durling. "She's fast and aggressive, and one of our top scorers." Coach Scott Dolan, a new addition this year, explained that Captains Stacey Mullin, Amy Beaudoin, and Leah Tobin added encouragement to the team. "They were the reason for success. They really prepared everyone."

It all came down to their last game of the regular season; they won and became the only girls' team to qualify for tournament. Not bad considering they made it to the semifinals.

Under the leadership of Cody Dublanica , Matt Volo, and Dave Dybes, this boys' team rocked the Hock. The difference from other years? Respect. No longer were vulgarities permitted nor were coaches called by first names; the punishment for either infraction was what came to be known as a "Stinger"— a suicide sprint with a sting. Not to say that there weren't light moments, but as a whole the season was taken with all seriousness and pride.

With this new attitude, the boys' team defeated opponents such as Oliver Ames, King Philip, and had revenge on Attleboro. They ended up in a three-way tie for second place.

From pure skill to die-hard determination, the MHS soccer season spelled success on both sides of the ball. Don't expect that to change soon either; neither team will be losing many seniors. In fact, Stacey Mullin says it best: "There are a lot of strong freshmen and in coming years I expect to see a great improvement."

Battling for the ball. Amy Beaudoin races to get to the ball before her opponent.

"Volleyball: Spiking to Success", "Young Hornets Upset North," and "Hornets in Tournament" read the headlines for Mansfield Volleyball's sophomoric success. Consisiting mainly of juniors and sophomores, this year's young varsity team defied the odds by upsetting opponents such as North Attleboro and Cardinal Spellman and finishing up the season 10-9.

> It is incredible to believe we came this far as a second year team."
> - Stacy Fleischmann

Mansfield's coach, Lorraine Weymouth, described her team as a "bunch of girls who (were) determined to be winners this season." She could not have been more correct. Under the leadership of captains, Stacy St. Laurent and Tracy Dunn, the determined group of girls' rallied from a 2-7 record about halfway through the season to end up 10-9 and just make the qualification for the state tournament. In fact, to qualify, the team absolutley had to win their final two games, a challenge they confronted with skill and fortitude. The hard work of everyone helped lift this still-underexperienced team to triumphant victory. Still, as with most all of MHS's teams, something more than just skill made these girls winners; it was hometown pride. If you ever watched them amidst play or doing their pre-game warmups, you could see that their understanding of the game went deeper than simple digging, setting, and spiking. It included an intimte understanding of each other. This year's volleyball team achieved greatness through cooperation, respect, and compassion.

Here we go. A contorted Stacy Fleischmann steps forward to meet the ball in the backcourt.

On the run

This year MHS's Cross-Country team was comprised of an astonishing 24 members, (17 boys and 7 girls). Headed by a new coach, Mr. Kelly, and complete with a new course, the team was ready to make a fresh start. They are more proof that it's never too late for anything at MHS.

Captained by senior Adam Briggs, the boys' team consisted of few veterans, namely Paul Phadungchai and Andy Tupaj. Joining were senior Gabe Andrews, and sophomores Adam Meaney and Rich Ludwig—better known as the "practice hero" for his intense efforts. That may sound like few, but one must account for the 12 freshmen, half of which were dubbed "The Satanic Six." This group, including Adam Lapham, Jason Abramowski, Charlie Woods, Ron Adams, Cullen McCarthy, and Kevin Coyne made a superb rookie showing.

The Girls' team also jumped in numbers. Under the leadership of senior Captain Catherine Henderson and three other seniors, the seven member team won its first victories in several years. Victim #1 was Stoughton, a meet at which everyone gave their all and ended up sprinting to a win. For a second win, they defeated Canton in a close matchup. Temeka Green, Annie Unger, and Paula Steele return next year, and hopes are high for continued cross country success. Remember, it's never too late for YOU to join either.

Unyielding

What is the significance of December 4, 1994 you ask? Fifty young men from MHS captured the dream of every high school football player in the country. They went to Super Bowl and emerged with the trophy. Outsiders assumed that after the game there would be a well-deserved period of rest. However, this assumption was ill-founded; for every player returned hungry for another state championship in 1995.

Workouts began in December of 1994 and never stopped. The intensity of the summer workouts equaled that of the heat. The team showed drive and commitment to achieve excellence unseen in years. Every member, worked hard lifting stoppedweights, running, and doing drills with the goal of becoming better They pushed themselves as well as each other toward their common goal..

Captains' practices came and went, along with and pre-season camp at Thompson's Island. There, for four gruellinig days, the team endured the horrors of double and even triple sessions. In addition to improving their skills, the members of the team became closer than most families.

As a family, the team celebrated victories against Lincoln Sudbury, Canton, and Attleboro. As a family, it battled through the adversity of tough injuries to key players and the pain of tough losses. Despite the record of wins and losses, the members of 1995 MHS Football team are champs of a different sort. This is because they played with pride, never gave up and accepted the season's outcome with dignity.

Unstoppable

The MHS Field Hockey team again made their presence known in the Hock and the rest of eastern Mass.with their outstanding record of fourteen wins, four losses, and two ties. With hard work and determination from all twenty-six members, the team upheld their reputation and qualified for the state tournament. It took a defeat from tough Bellingham in the quarterfinals to finally put down this strong-willed MHS team.

Leading the team this year were captains Kaitlin Hoffmann, Syagean Chang, an and Kristen Alleruzzo, the latter two having made the switch from offense to defense in their final year. Seniors Nichole Price, Meredith McGue, Kerri Dingivan, Cheryl Danner, Maureen Downey, and Rachele Caturano also factored into MHS's offense and defensive schemes. Meanwhile, juniors Kelly Dalrymple and Jean Publicover formed the backbone of the team.

"Kelly's aggressiveness and Jean's consistency make our defense as tough as any. They give confidence to our young goalies," commented Coach Levine. These young goalies are Kristen Bonnyman and Nicole Smith, who both stepped up to the challenge of varsity play. Levine attributed the success of the two to Coach Hill who spent time preparing them.

The future definitely looks bright as the JV team had another great season and upped their streak to EIGHTY-FIVE CONSECUTIVE GAMES.

Once again, the MHS Golf Team has proven that long and hard practice pays off! The 95-96 season began with a 4-1 record. This terrific start inspired the team to work, concentrate, and play even harder. Seniors Eric Brown, Nick Dei, Pat Folan, and John Gannon provided excellent leadership for underclass team members Bill Dempsey and Andy Faria, resulting in a strong team effort. Led by Coach Hershman, the golf team trained at the Norton Country club with the intention of getting into (and winning) the state tournament. At the Mansfield-Sharon qualifying round, scoring efforts were led by Bill Dempsey and Eric Brown.

Although the Hornets qualified for the state tournament, they missed the second round cut off by one point. This season of hard work and practice ended with a satisfying 7-8-1 record. Congratulations to Mr. Hershman and the team for their dedication and achievements in the game of golf.

Through Super-Bowl winning seasons and seasons without a win, MHS Cheerleaders keep on going. They encourage fall and winter sports to "Go! Fight! Win!" On and off the court, the varsity and JV squads do all they can to show their support. Literally. Cheerleaders lift and hold each other by the soles of their feet in elevators, extensions, free standing liberties, and arabesques. Do they ever fall? Yes, But do their spirits? What sports event easily takes away the title of most violent? Hockey. hands down. It is the newest of MHS sports and can also be categorized as the most trying. After all, what team practices prior to school? Ice hockey practices start as early as 5:30 in the morning at a rink nearly 45 minutes away. And what other team is forced to travel to exotic locales in order to compete because MHS doesn't have the accomodations for their sport? The answer-- none other than the Ice Hornets.

In only its second year of play at MHS, the Ice Hornets are still a young team. Although being forced to play at the junior varsity level for a second year in a row, the team has improved tremendously since last season. Bouncing back from a tough season last year, the Ice Hornets finished the season with a 15-3 record. Next year as they enter play at the varsity level, they are sure to be a team to beat.

Season after season, sports at MHS have long upheld an unparalleled tradition of excellence This winter season, the boys' and girls' basketball teams were no exception to that rule.

Consisting of 13 girls, (mostly sophomores and juniors), the girls' team was in for a season of change as Ms. Conaty (our athletic director) took over the head coaching position. Under her expertise, they sharpened their skills throughout the entire season. Although they struggled to keep up in the Hockomock League, all realized that they steadily improved as they came together as a team.

The boys' team had a successful season and the numbers prove it. They finished the season with a tremendous record of 7-10.

Stemming from their success, the number of fans attending games jumped in numbers from years past. " The season was really exciting because many of the games came right down to the last couple of minutes. Basketball is the best!", comments Jaime Freedman.

For the girls' team, the action was great as well. Despite the fact the numbers weren't there, they put their heart and soul into the season. and that made all the difference. As Coach Conaty put it, " Our challenge for next season is learning how to win."

The boys' team is sure to continue their success as many players will be returning next year under Coach Hershman's guidance.

See you next season!

Step by step

Although this winter's deluge of snow often made running outside impossible for winter track athletes, they never let up. In fact, the girls' team completed its season with a 4-4 record. "Our first four meets were great," comments captain Stacey Mullin,"but injuries and the snow on the track hindered our progress in the second half of the sesason".

Despite these difficulties, though, the team kept their spirits up with various morale boosters. Coach Donahue's cupcakes, team pizza parties, homemade t-shirts contributed to the team's high spirits. As captain Cheryl Danner concluded, "Even though we've gone 4-4 in the past, I think this season was our most successful because we became extremely close as a team and learned to work as a unit."

Rising Stars

Walking through the gym after school, one can easily become wrapped up in the action of a game or practice. The skill and dedication displayed by student athlete often surprises the outside observer. And what's even more surprising is the fact that many of the amazing teams showcasing their skills in the gym are composed entirely of freshmen.

Believe it or not, freshmen play a great role in the sports world at MHS. Aside from serving on freshmen teams, these 9th graders often play on junior varsity or varsity teams as well. Freshmen quickly move up the ranks. They are the future all-stars, MVP's, and unsung heroes. They truly are the rising stars of the MHS sports world.

O Leader!

Being a captain isn't just about getting respect and having control, it's about caring, being involved and working hard.

"When I was first voted captain, I was so excited, but when the season started I realized how much work I was in for," reflects Amy Beaudoin.

The responsibilities of a captain include organizing team activites, keeping team spirit high as well as communicating with both players and coaches. While the captains do get a lot of respect from their fellow teammates, they have to earn it.

"This year I found myself working harder than ever before because I knew everyone was watching me," comments Angela Powers.

The sucess of MHS's athletic teams results from the strong effort and dedication of the captains.

Lighting the Way

With the induction of forty new members this year, the National Honor Society has reached new heights. Last October, the senior members of the society participated in the annual Food and Clothing Drive for the Westside Benevolent Society with great results. Now, because the NHS has become so large and its members are eager to do more, the group will join with the Student Council to organize a Mansfield High School Talent Show.

"As a society of students who care about the community, we wanted to find a new way to raise money for charity. By sponsoring a talent show, we raise the money while having fun and boosting school spirit," states vice-president Stacey Mullin.

As reflected by past fundraisers, this endeavor promises to be equally as successful. Scheduled for this May, the show is sure to draw crowds as it is the first of its kind in our community. Although it is sure to be entertaining, the best part of the entire evening is bound to rely on the fact that the proceeds will benefit local charities. And it's all a result of the MHS National Honor Society lighting the way.

If you see someone walking around the halls this fall in his pajamas or the ugliest pair of polyester bell bottoms you've ever seen, it was probably a member of the student council showing his unflinching (yet sometimes embarrasing) school spirit.

After all, promoting spirit is what the Student Council is all about. Whether they are busy counting pennies during Thanksgiving week or decorating for the outrageous eighties dance, they always seem to be making the long days we spend at MHS a bit more enjoyable.

This year, under the leadership of seniors, the student council "attempted" some new and exciting ploys to get the student body more pumped up about school spirit. While trying to get Mr. Perry to kiss a pig at the Homecoming rally didn't work too well, the second annual Penny Wars generated over $500 for scholarships.

Increasing school spirit isn't the only thing the group does, however. According to president Jon Pierce, "The student council should also be interested in the community, helping people less fortunate than ourselves." For the first time ever, the student council hosted a talent show to raise money for the Jimmy Fund.

Whether they're selling carnations for Valentine's Day or hosting a brunch for teachers, the student council is constantly trying to improve the morale at MHS. While you may think their fashion statements during spirit week are a little off the wall, you've got to admire their dedication.

Les Mis and more

Every Thursday night, a close-knit group called the Concert Choir returns to MHS from 7 to 9 p.m. This ensemble of about sixty students sets this time aside to sing their hearts out in preparation for their many concerts. Each Holiday season, the choir performs for the Council on Aging, the Grange, and even the elementary schools. In the spring, the choir and band collaborate to create a musical extravaganza, the Pops Concert. The choir performs an array of music, from "Les Miserables" and "Sunset Blvd." to eighteenth century pieces to Bette Midler Ballads. Special appearances are made by members of the cast of the spring play, Kaleidescope, and graduating seniors. The concert is always a memorable experience with beautiful music, hilarious comedy, and old set pieces strewn about the cafeteria.

This year's selections from "Les Miserables" often proved baffling, but the choir took it in stride. Knowing the story behing the music often helps the choir sing with feeling; therefore, director Miss Trombley fills the group in on what's happening. Enthusiastic singers always sound better than bored ones....when the singers understand Eponine's loneliness and Jean Valjean's inner-conflict, they sound better. Singing with motivation and strength (and each other!), the MHS Concert Choir moves the audience like no Broadway cast can!

From its small scale beginnings toward the end of the previous school year, Mansfield High School's very own newspaper, MHS Mainstream, this year progressed into a major production. Under the commendable leadership of junior Editor-in-Chief Dipesh Mukerji, this venture into journalism, business, and production took off with much success, featuring everything from spotlights on new teachers and learning programs to commentaries on the O.J. Simpson trial and other controversial topics affecting high school students. The quarterly paper included the latest in sports and entertainment as well.

In addition to newspaper, yearbook, and Writing Center tutoring, the literary mind at MHS has the option of exploring the English language through the Writers' Forum. Like other school publications, the Writers' Forum's own literary journal, "Stylus", presents interested students with the opportunity to express themselves. However, unlike the "MHS Mainstream" and Never Too Late, whose repertoire is somewhat limited to factual reportage and editorials, "Stylus" is devoted primarily to creative writing and artwork. "Stylus" editor Casey Holford says, "The 'Stylus' serves a double purpose as an outlet for creative expression and a rip-roaring good time."

Publishing is not the only function of the forum. The group's main concern is creating a non-judgemental atmosphere in which one can share her work and receive feedback about it. "It's a real laid-backed situation," says co-editor Melissa Gordon.

Let's Jam

From trumpets to flags, "Hair" to James Bond, band and color guard know how to put on an amazing show! The MHS Marching Band and Fall Guard began their season with selections from the musical "Hair", notably "Age of Aquarius."

"I loved it! It was really well executed," commended one person who had attended the show. The band and color guard are a traditional fixture at MHS for fall games, and have earned a reputation in competition as well. They entertain the crowds that have come out for games and earn much applause during their colorful, imaginative, half-time shows.

One of the most interesting aspects of band and guard is the way that different ages and skill levels are integrated in to one Spectacular performance.

"The freshman and eighth graders truly do add a lot to the group. By the time they are seniors, they'll be pros!", says junior Mike Phipps.

"The older members of guard have made me feel really welcome. They are lots of fun," admits eight grade guard member Amy Coccia.

Amoebas? Ultrasonography? Genetic engineering? Who cares about all this stuff? Answer: The members of the science club, one of the more populated organizations at MHS, care!

The science club works hard to make MHS an environmentally sound, learning-inducive, aesthetically pleasing place to spend time. This year's annual fall planting was successful, as usual, and contributed to the school's appearance considerably. Those green recycling bins in each room? Right you are! They are all provided and maintained by the science club. Club-sponsored Careers in Science night provides guidance and information for wanna-be engineers, doctors, therapists, ecologists, biochemists, marine biologists, farmers, RAD-techs, nurses and, of course, science teachers!

SADD. No, its not a support group for the bereaved. It's Students Against Drunk Driving, and it ranks as one of the most persistent organizations at Mansfield High School. Through storms, recessions, snow, sleet, hail, plane crashes, federal shut-downs, earthquakes, wars, political unrest, and swarms of killer bees (okay, maybe not), SADD has always performed its job; to educate MHS students about the dangers of drunk driving. In a confusing world, SADD has always kept its mission pure and simple.

There's an old proverb that says, "He who saves one life saves the world entire." Although SADD is hardly responsible for world salvation, its presence subtly influences people every day. If the deluge of posters, announcements, red ribbons, faux accident victims in white face paint, pencils, and Prom Promise contracts convinces even one student not to get behind the wheel while intoxicated, SADD has accomplished its goal.

Helping Hands

Does the "law of cosines" or "binomial expansion" mean anything to you? Probably not, unless you are a member of the MHS Math team.

Although not one of the most recognized clubs at MHS, this small group of approximately five to fifteen members keeps very busy throughout the year. With only three seniors and a strong core of underclassmen, the math team competes in three different leagues. While two of the leagues only offer mail-in competitions, the third consists of monthly head-to-head battles against other area schools, including our Hockomock league competitors. In this league, the team is the returning champion after an undefeated 1995 season. With any luck (and some of that mathematical probability!), the team will again capture the title making Mr. Barnes very happy.

According to some of the members, there are many reasons to join the Math Team.

"Believe it or not, the problems we complete during our competitions are great practice for the SAT's, states Derek Hansen, a sophomore member.

"Actually, I like the candy Mr. Barnes gives us," admits freshman Jared Goldman. Whatever the reason, the members of the Math Team are dedicated not only to winning but to also improving their math skills.

If you've ever needed help on an essay or a writing sample, you've probably visited the Writing Center. With a full complement of experienced tutors and a new set of Macintosh computers, the Writing Center has become more popular than ever before. Many tutors attribute the center's success to a "friendly" atmosphere and not just new technology.

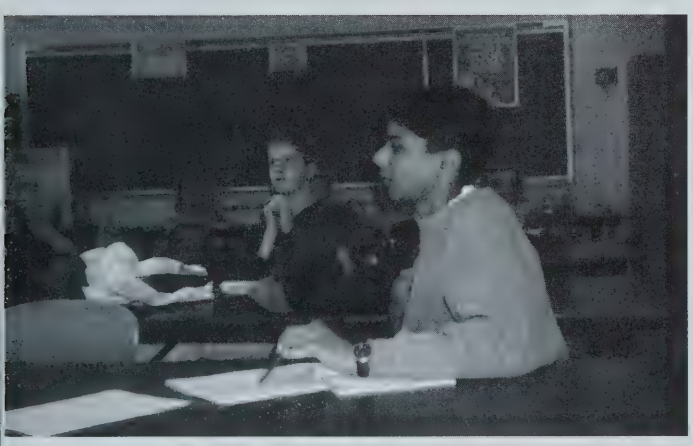
"As a freshman, I was afraid to go into the Writing Center; I didn't know any upperclassmen, so I would hesitate to go in," states junior Jeanne Kenaley. Because they realize younger student's fear, they strive to make the center a relaxed place.

In addition to encouraging students to get help by giving the center a more welcoming atmosphere, the tutors have tried to guide their tutee's writing styles while helping them convey their own ideas.

"Because I used to be a terrible writer, I know what it feels like to need help," comments senior Alex Meaney, "but my old tutors from freshmen year helped me develop as a writer instead of just telling me what to write."

The tutor's concern is helping students get their own thoughts across influencing not thier ideas, but their style.

"Finding that balance between telling them what to fix and telling them what to do is tough," senior Alex French admits. Although the work is demanding, the writing center tutors are on the "write" track.



Listen up! Neal Patel and Dave Pierce absorb Mr. Barnes' solution to the practice proof they have just completed.

Making memories

What's the deal with those oddities?

Something's weird here. They call the custodians by their first names. They try to sell ad space to dentists and mechanics. They put signs up, take pictures of everything, and run around like maniacs trying to find scoreboards and quotes. They call each other crazy nicknames, laugh all the time, and mysteriously refer to something called "the executive washroom." And there's the rumor that they actually live in the Writing Center. Strange.

Yes, the rumors are all true. There is a small body of industrious MHS students fitting this description to a T. They are the Yearbook Staff, and are they ever peculiar! The yearbook, led by editor-in-chief/messiah Kristin "Stan" Conti, is involved in many covert operations after hours. The secret yearbook bunker is located deep in the bowels of the building and houses croppers, yearbook paraphernalia, homey knickknacks, and the famed executive washroom. (Really... they have a private bathroom, but it lies three miles away from anything. Kinda inconvenient.) However, the closet-sized bunker is too small and secluded for the the insanity that yearbook production entails and this $20,000 business venture requires Writing Center technology. On occasion, they sweat for their consecrated cause deep into the night. Of course, their hours of toil and labor aren't without their perks. For the staff of Never Too Late: cheez-its, private jokes, crazy nicknames, and a policy of laughing hysterically at everything said is a way of life.

"It gets crazy. You get tired and punchy after being in the building for 12 hours. We get kind of rambunctious. After awhile, everything seems funny. Kristin Conti is my God!," says business editor Kristen Calvin.

Conti responds with, "Calvin, I love YOU, man!" (And yes, they say it does get confusing when everyone seems to be named Kristin, hence the use of last names.)

The insanity doesn't end with late night antics in the writing center. Assistant editor Katelynn O'Brien spends her off hours in a fish store! However, even then, she has yearbook's best interests at heart. She convinced her boss to purchase an ad in the back of the book.

"Ad sales were very, er, interesting.", says sophomore staff member Derek Hansen. One staff member recalls being ordered out of store by a cranky woman holding yarn.

"From that day forward, MHS Varsity Knitting team has purchased its wool elsewhere!", she jokes. Staff members get to their ad-selling terrritory (and everywhere else) via Holly Donnelly's red Camaro named Elmo.

" Even I got to drive it!", exclaims learner's permit-equipped Stacy Coccia.

Whether mobile or sedentary, the staff remains dedicated to two things: putting out a quality book and having fun while doing it. And from the look of it... they succeeded!

One last note from Conti: "Remember, we BLED for this thing!"

Working it. Kristen Calvin spends a few minutes after school going through pictures in the yearbook bunker, the writing center.

Conti's Corner

(A Letter from the Chief!)

AND THEY SAID IT COULDN'T BE DONE! The miracle book of 1996 is here! Although this book may seem like just a bunch of photos and words, these pages are from the heart. There is a little piece of me on every page and because of that, this is the most wonderful and fulfilling experience of my life.

A special "Thanks!" to you Calvin! You're the other half of the yearbook empire, the powerhouse! Thank you for EVERYTHING (especially listening for hours..and hours..and hours). I have complete confidence in you and know that you'll do fine next year. Don't stress over the "commitment and responsibilty" because remember that I (little Ms. "Slacker") pulled it off against the odds! Your book next year is going to blow this one away. (Yeah, I know you're already plotting your perfect book as you leaf through mine, picking out the flaws! - JK) I wish you a huger than huge staff, lots of Alanis (female empowerment) and Billy Joel, a great relationship with the janitorial staff, a wallful of your own memories in the bowels of the building, endless pasta, and endless patience to deal with "Hal". And don't worry--I shall return! I'm not leaving the state. And by the way--I love YOU, man!

To my best friends, Katelynn, Holly and Juliane: You guys ROCK my little world! The yearbook is notorious for destroying friendships. That is why it means so much to me that WE MADE IT! I love you guys. They say "True friends are like band-aids. They stick with you through the thick and thin." It's definitely true. You stuck by me through the most stressful experience of my entire life (the making of this book). Through every tedious thing I asked of you (including 600 underclassmen photos), you were there. You believed that I could do it and told me so time and time again! How did you know that reassurance was all that I needed? You guys always seem to know. Thnak you from the bottom of my heart.

To Stacy Coccia: Thank you for all of your hard work (especially tallying those survey results). You are going to a yearbook whiz in the years to come. Hang in there!

To Derek, Jon P, and Stacey: I hope you all realize that this book would be devoid of stories, (and what good would that be?), if not for the time you took to write all those stories for me. You are all truly wonderful, giving people.

Next, to Mr. Pontes. Thank you so much for all your support! You've made all the difference in the world when it came to this book! You knew exactly when to push and when to lay off! Good work "Cap'n"! We did it! We got that last laugh! (Ha! Ha! Hee! Hee! Hee!).

Thanks to Mrs. Baptiste and Mrs. Pierce for your endless help and support. You always made the time to help me when I needed something. Thank you to Mr. Kite for all of the technical support throughout the year. Thank you for sharing your knowledge. To the administration: Thank you for all of your support in theis project. To all of you it may have seemed like you barely helped, but you can be sure this book wouldn't be what it is without you.

To the senior class: Thank you all for the wonderful memories you have given me. I wish each and every one of you all the happiness in the world. We shall meet again, but until then - Goodbye and Good Luck!

I love my mommy! Holly D.'s kickin' Red Camaro, Elmo, is the yearbook staff's stylin' ride around town.

Aquanaut? What exactly is an "Aquanaut"? It you've ever asked yourself that question, you're about to discover the question.

It may sound like all fun and games but the 12 students who accompanied Ms. Wood and Mr. Burger knew they were definitely not in for an easy ride. The Aquanaut project consisted of a 5 day trip to Gordon College in Glouster. Its purpose being to research whales and the effects of sound in the ocean.

For the entire five days, the students were aboard a research boat. Everyone had specific tasks that they were responsible for. Lynn Kamen alerted the crew when on-coming boats were "coming straight at us." Stacey Mullin, Nichole Price, Syagean Chang and Cat Henderson were busily employed examining other vessels. Kevin Barre, Aaron Johnstone, Mark Farrell drove the underwater research camera while Jeanne Kenaley and Kerri-Lyn Nickerson were checking the solar update. Tara O'Connor and Jessica Fetherstone watched for whales.

Despite the hard work, the entire group of MHS students describe the experience as truly wonderful and unique. They wish to say "Thank You" to the entire crew of the ARGO Maine, Ms. Wood, Mr. Burger and of course, Big Al (the ax murderer/ cook.)

Give peace a chance

Mmmmm. The smell of warm, delicious brownies wafts through the corridors and, enthralled by the scent, the student body at MHS moves towards the source. They wound up at a bake sake in the gym lobby. Cookies...brownies...candy... all for the price of a local phone call! Who could these bake sale benefactors, bearers of chocolate to the sugar-deprived of Mansfield, be?

They are none other than Words not Weapons, MHS' resident violence prevention organization. Somehow, knowing that their money is used to support area battered women's shelters makes chocolate-eating a guilt-free process.

Believe it or not, Words not Weapons' good deeds do not end with baking. Educating others about the importance of using words to settle disputes is a major goal. Towards that end, members attend conferences with similar organizations to discuss and brainstorm innovative ways of educating. One project in the works is called "Kindness Gangs." The idea is to give elementary school students the chance to identify with a group where prestige is gained through being considerate, not being physically intimidating.

You have probably wondered to yourself at least once this year, "Who is putting up all those signs all over the school about the need for peace?".

Well, you don't have to look any further than that little rooom by the library to find that it is the MHS Mediators that are trying to put an end to violence.

Now in its fourth year, the MHS mediation program is designed to help deal with the potential and real-life conflicts that students face. With a staff of highly trained mediators and four seasoned advisors, the success rate of the program is exceptionally high, with most conflicts being successfully resolved.

So what kind of conflicts do mediators face?

"Sometimes it's just a matter of a dirty look given in study hall or a rumor that is floating around," says junior Gina Dei, "Other times, though, it can be something much bigger, like boyfriend thievery or even racial comments."

Although mediators are sworn to secrecy regarding the specific nature of conflicts, you can bet they've seen some big ones. Maybe the MHS mediators aren't as well known as they would like to be and maybe don't receive a ton of referrals for mediation, but you can bet they are doing everything they can to stop the spread of violence and to "give peace a chance."

Like other academic-based clubs, the French and Spanish clubs offer MHS students a chance to explore the classroom.

The object of the foreign language clubs is to give english-speaking American students the opportunity to enjoy other languages and cultures. Spanish Club member Kristin Conti comments, "The best part of the Spanish Club is the field trip to the International Festival in Boston. I bought the legendary squeaky frog. Froggie want a pretzel?".

French Club treasurer Ryan Heroux thinks, "It's great! We get to see french movies and get all the food we can eat... every Valentine's Day every French Club member runs around selling lollipops! Only 75 cents each! Whatta deal!"

Concerning Spanish Club, Derek Hansen says, "We make pinatas, then bust them and get all the candy. Yummy!"

Evidently, without the French and Spanish Clubs, the MHS student population would end up culturally unenlightened...and very hungry!

Can anyone guess what Wednesday night is? I mean besides Prince Spaghetti night. If you guessed that the MHS orchestra meets on Wednesday nights, you're absolutely correct!

The orchestra is a small but select musical group comprised of about 25 members playing six different instruments. "This year, we're playing a lot of classical, but we've played pieces from soundtracks in the past," says violinist Kerrina Whelan. Needless to say, music is a huge part of their lives. But it isn't only thing that draws them to rehearsals. . .

"I'm here for Jason's wig stories!", comments the bass-playing Rebecca Davey. (Apparently, sophomore Jason Martel has an extensive collection of humorous stories concerning wigs.) In addition to musical camaraderie, some members enjoy a little friendly competition. Both the District and SEMSBA music festivals require auditions, and the Mansfield Orchestra compete against each other and residents of other towns for seats. (Of course, the talent present in this orchestra is far above par, and a higher than average number get in.) Furthermore, they have instigated a new form of competition--an annual tennis tournament. "The winners get to play Greg and Dipesh...and lose!", smirks Kerrina.

Traditions continue

... "Touchdown!", and the crowd is on its feet. In a frenzy, they don't even mind the frigid temperatures.

...Green and white adorns Main St. as the homemade floats roll by decorated with balloons and streamers.

...The name of the Homecoming Queen is announced at the Friday afternoon rally.

...The gym is filled with music as the band performs.

The sights and sounds of Homecoming at MHS are usually pretty much the same from year to year. This October 28, the Hornets pulled out a 34-6 victory over K.P. The senior class took first place with their float titled "Trash the Warriors". Music still greeted us when we entered the gym for the 7th period rally. Mandy Epstein was crowned the 1995 Homecoming Queen.

However routine this year 's activities seem, don't be fooled. This year was like none other. Mother Nature had a surprise in store. What you ask? Try whipping wind and torrential downpours. Homecoming was postponed until Sunday but you know what they say...THE SHOW MUST GO ON!

Touchdown! Erik Lundell spikes the ball as he scores and secures the win against King Philip for the Hornets.

Cut up. Before the start of the parade, Megan Shea cuts green and white ribbon to wear in her hair.

Break on through. The Hornets storm the field to begin the attack on KP.

Perfect form. Tracey Miele accompanies the band on the xylophone at the Homecoming rally.

Hi there! Juliane Murray and Katelynn O'Brien manage a wave while they struggle to hold the senior float down on the way to the school parking lot.

What next? Aboard the senior float, Stacey St. Laurent waits for instructions from Mr. Perry.

What spirit! Kristin Conti, Cheryl Danner, and Juliane Murray hold part of the senior spirit link chain at the rally Hippity, hoppity. Alyssa DiGiovanni (aided by a potato sack) bounces across the front lawn.

Pull, pull. The junior tug of war team struggles their way to victory against the sophomore team.

Go Seniors. Sarah Scarchilli hangs signs on the senior wall prior to the rally.

Pie in the face. Maureen Downey slurps down some chocolate cream pie for the good of the senior class at the rally. She was victorious.

Fight to the Finish

Tug of Wars, Sack races, Penny Wars, Scavenger Hunts! How far would you go? Would you ride a big wheel around the front circle? Would you risk a face full of pie at the rally in front of the whole school? Would you dress like you stepped out of the 60's for a day? How about a 70's disco king/ queen? Sure, it sounds abnormal, but MHS students had a blast being strange for a month. It was a Spirit competition sponsored by the Student Concil.

Starting the week before Homecoming and ending Thanksgiving week, the four grades battled it out for the title of "Most Spirited Class of the Year." With their grades' honor at stake, numerous students participated in wild and wacky events contests. But alas, despite the heated competition throughout. the senior class swept nearly all of the events and took home the banner. Long live the Class of 1996!

'Tis the Season

In the age of microwaves ovens and anti-freeze, one may find it difficult to find chestnuts roasting on an open fire or Jack Frost nipping at your nose.

Holiday spirit is getting more and more scarce these days. Fortunately, one can still find that old time Christmas feeling on stage at MHS every December. This year's play, written and directed by Ms. Trombley, was about the employees and owners of a toy factory. A colorful medley of music and merriment, the show showcased the talent of the concert choir and band. The music ranged from christmas classics and Hanukkah songs to showtunes to themes from popular children's programs. Visiting students from Jordan/Jackson, Robinson, and QMS enjoyed the program as much as the student body at MHS did.

"The Power Rangers were AWESOME!", gushed one younger sibling when asked if she enjoyed the show.

Traditionally, the Holiday Extavaganza has excited MHS students bet signals the start of Christmas vacation. However, in recent years, it has provided even more than the hope of a week without school. It offers a Jolly Old Saint Nick to the slim-fast generation.

Say what? Jason Wright playing the role of a brainless puppet? Perfect.

Catching the spirit. Casey Holford portrays a businessman overcome by the holiday season.

Rock on. Power Rangers Dave Bozzi and Mike Phipps work their rendition of "Blue Christmas".

Little brats. Kristin Conti, Anthony Victoria and Janelle Palomba regress to eight year old status as they ham it up in "I'm gettin' nuttin for Christmas".

Clowning around. Mike Moore, Pat McEttrick and Chris Devine have a ball being silly.

Whoa Baby! Jon Pierce slips and Jen Vlachos shows some slip.

Some more little brats. Stacy Coccia, Mike Amoruso, and Connie Blaisdell cheerfully belt out "It's a Marshmallow World".

Little dolls. Megan Shea (Dress Up Dolly) and Ryann Delsignore (Betsy Wetsy) entertain the masses.

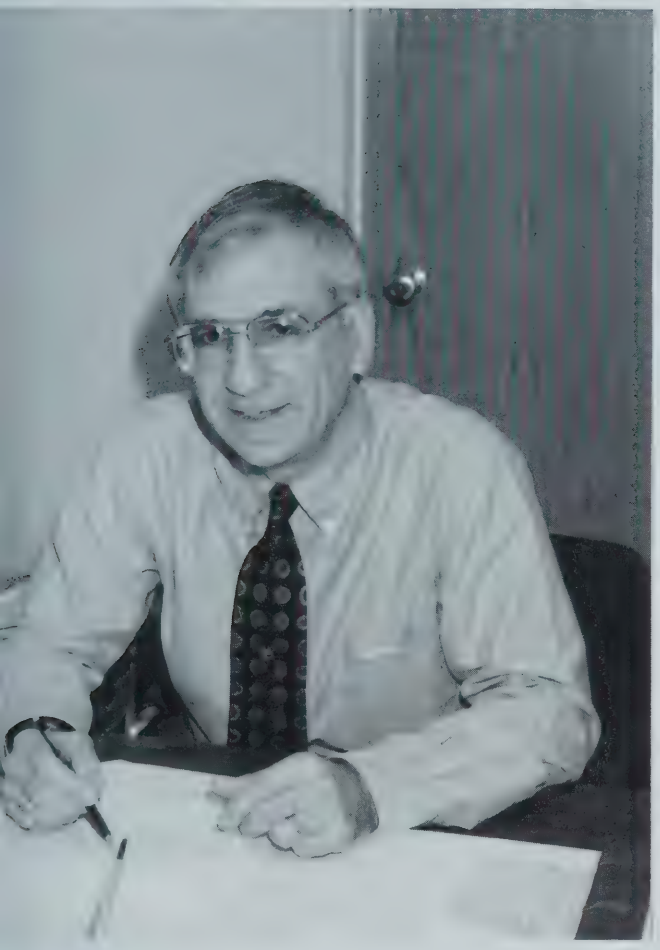
Principal's Address



Dear members of the Class of "96":

Congratulations for having completed all the requirements and for earning your high school diploma. During the past four years, you have grown educationally, socially and emotionally which will enable you to meet the challenges that the next phase of your life will present.

Best wishes for a successful future, and I hope you always fondly remember your days at Mansfield High School.

Sincerely,
Edward A. Rosa

MHS's newest faculty members enjoy their hobbies . . .

WITH TIME TO SPARE

Overcome by the pressure to excel at Mansfield, it would seem that the high school's newest faculty members have little time to relax. Well, they don't. But when they do, they really know how to live it up. Yes, they, too, have lives.

Mr. Kristoff, one of two new chemistry teachers, is probably the "king of cool." Prior to Mansfield, he served as the football game announcer at Brookline High School while fulfilling an internship. He admits, however, that working at Mansfield has demanded his full attention. He now uses what little spare time he has to read, create worldwide web sites, and even go to an occasional Nine Inch Nails concert. Yes, Nine Inch Nails. Dancing and various sports are also on his list of interests. If you're lucky, you might even get a chance to challenge him at a game of afterschool ping-pong; he's an avid player.

Kristoff's partner in crime, Mr. Tulli, is also more than just atoms and molecules. While he was working at Fitchburg High School, he starred in a "Shower-to-Shower" commercial on cable access and was a local hit. He's an all-around mellow kind of guy, using his leftover time to watch TV, read, listen to Boys II Men, or just "hang out."

In the math department, Ms. LaFountaine has proved to be a hit with her students. A true outdoorswoman, she loves everything from cooking and volleyball to camping and traveling. In fact, she drove and camped cross country—WITHOUT air conditioning—her summer prior to coming to Mansfield. With the burdens of teaching, she now takes every chance she gets to at least listen to the music of Gin Blossoms or watch the Discovery Channel.

MHS has also been blessed with a new English department head: Mr. Kite. During his over twenty years of teaching he has earned an EdM at Harvard and served as a sports coach. He now spends his free time sailing on the Cape, woodworking, and enjoying outdoor activities such as skiing and camping with his wife and four children.

Even MHS' newest vice principal, Mr. Antolini, has his few moments of relaxation. Whether it's fishing or running with the X-Country team or on his own, he doesn't let any spare time go to waste. Interestingly, he spent his summer before coming to Mansfield traveling to Kentucky with a group called the Appalachian Service Project. They went around to various towns in order to help needy families rebuild their homes.

Finally, another new English teacher, Mr. Pontes, must be duly noted; nearly all of his spare time goes to serving as the new yearbook advisor. If not for him, you wouldn't even be reading this.

How do we say goodbye to what we had?

The good times that made us laugh outweighed the bad.
I thought we'd get to see forever, but forever has blown away.
It's so hard to say goodbye to yesterday.

I don't know where the road is going to lead to.

All I know is where we've been and what we've been through.
If it gets me to tomorrow, I hope it's worth all the pain.
It's so hard to say goodbye to yesterday.

And I'll take with me the memories to be my sunshine after the rain
It's so hard to say goodbye to yesterday. . .
However, the memories will never fade.

PowderPuff

FINAL SCORE

Seniors	Juniors

Although Powderpuff football is an annual event at MHS, this year's game was like no other.

Preparation started early as the junior and senior student coaches got ready for their head-to-head battle. Intense practices also kicked off earlier than ever. As the intensity heated up so did the rivalry between the senior and junior girls.

Before anyone realized it, game day had arrived. The play was fierce and aggressive. Although both teams fought hard, the results were as predicted. The seniors came out on top with two touchdowns as opposed to the one scored by the junior girls.

Tradition continued as the Class of 1996 prevailed once again. We are the champions!

Grrrrr! The junior and senior girls go head to head at the line of scrimmage.

Sideline advice. Rob Jewett, Kevin Barre and Mike Brunelli offer words of wisdom to the players on the field.

Curfews

You have to be home at what time?!?

What ungodly early hour do your parents make you be in the house? 10pm, maybe even 9pm? Or are you one of the lucky ones that don't have to be in until 12am or 1am? Well if you are, God is certainly smiling upon you. Despite how much we may despise the control our parents have over us, it's a fact of life. Actually, it's a fact which we usually deal with, even maintaining a certain level of decorum. However, the exception to this rule happens when it comes down to the issue of the almighty curfew. It just seems that that is the part we all hate.

And the survey says. . .

What time is your curfew?

10pm 3%
11pm 28%
12am 51%
1am 18%

Are you always on time?

Reel fun

The mall. The Bowling Alley. Poolhall. Hanging out at McDonalds. Yeah, everyone knows that's about the extent of the "fun" in our sleepy little town of Mansfield. Yet, there is one more hang-out spot that we teenagers flock to time and time again. That spot is the movies.

We shell out top dollar to see every type of movie under the sun. However, the popular favorite seems to be comedies. For example, Happy Gilmore and The Birdcage are new to the theater this month and they are the talk of the town at MHS.

Although there are movie theaters springing up all over our area, the old favorites still remain the same. For example, new and more modern cinemas have been built in Taunton and Sharon but Triboro is still the overpowering leader, attracting nearly 90% of the MHS student body.

No matter what type of movie you prefer to see, you're bound to have "Reel Fun" on your next visit to the movies.

And the survey says . . .

How many times a month do you go to the movies?

Twice a month	75%
Once a month	15%

Food fight!

McDonald's. Wendy's. Newport Creamery. Tahana. Olive Garden. Friendly's. There certainly is a multitude of restaurants in our area. It often seems as if they are building a new addition to the dining community everyday.

Fortunately, people's tastes are as diverse as the selection of dining experiences these days. Whether one chooses to grab a quick bite to eat at the corner variety store or chooses to have a complete theme to their meal, it's second nature to dine out. Many students report eating out at least three times a week if not more. As a result, home cooking has become nearly obsolete. The traditional popular foods of generations past such as macaroni and cheese and meatloaf have been replaced by McChickens and pepperoni pizzas.

So whether your favorite food happens to be burritos from Taco Bell or Ma's old fashioned meatloaf, one thing is certain. When discussing the all-time favorite food, there is sure to be a "food fight".

And the survey says . . .

When you go out, who usually drives?

your parents	52%
a friend's parents	23%
another relative	10%
an older friend	15%

How late are your parents willing to pick you up on weekends?

9-10 p.m.	10%
10-11 p.m.	23%
11-12 a.m.	52%
12-1 a.m.	15%

When you do get you license, do you expect to have your own car?

yes	69%
no	31%

What would you name your dream car?

Some responses were quite tame (i.e - Joe, Stan, Brian, Daisy), while others were a lot more creative. For example: Bessy, Bub, Silly Bus, Bad Larry, Mr. Winkie and Nilly.

Is another weekend approaching? Is the stress mounting? "What are we doing this weekend?" is the obvious question. While upperclassmen just hop in the car and take off for the evening, the scenario is very different for freshmen.

Frantic phone calls to friends are almost inevitable as the search for a mode of transportation heightens. Heated debates are commonplace between teens and parents, even when quibbling over a ride to somewhere as near as the movies or mall.

As much as they dislike it, parents are destined to what seems like an eternity of shuttling their students around as they lounge in the backseat dreaming about their dream car named Bessy, Bob, Daisy, Winky, or could it be Bad Larry?

Everyone knows it's like pulling teeth but it's a routine game for freshmen social butterflies. One they (quite unwillingly) play when waiting for that godsend,the greatest piece of plastic on this great green earth. The driver's license. Little do they know that the problems will not end. the question will only shift, asking "Who's car are we going to take?" rather than "Whose Mom is going to drive?"

Elmo takes a rest. He is one of the many cars that are driven by MHS students.

Getting By With A Little Help From Our "Friends"

We gave you the opportunity to speak out. Yeah, we discovered the obvious. The freshmen class at Mansfield High School is definitely a Class-A bunch of spuds. Couch potatoes that is. Come on, an average of 25 hours a week in front of the boob tube?

But, on the flip side, they have some good taste in television. The television shows that rate high with them are Freinds, Seinfeld, and ER (in that order). In that respect, they are certainly not alone. After all, isn't everyone tuned into prime time on Thursday night? Who can really resist that cute little monkey Marcel or the antics of that crazy Cosmo Kramer?

And the survey says . . .

How namy hours a day do you watch TV?

1 hour	21%
2 hours	29%
3 hours	24%\
4 hours	7%
5 hours	19%

How many hours a week do you watch TV?

0-5 hours	15%
6-12 hours	30%
13-18 hours	23%
19 or more	31%

Top three TV Shows:

1) Friends
2) ER
3) Seinfeld

What is your favorite time slot?

6-7 p.m	10%
7-8 p.m.	29%
8-9 p.m.	36%
9-10 p.m.	23%

Calvin's Corner

(A Letter from the Business Chief!)

Those following pages of ads serve several functions. First they allow parents and community business owners to congratulate the graduating class. Second, they provide the opportunity for local businesses to advertise. Kindly support the MHS Yearbook by patronizing the establishments who have advertised in this section. Third, the revenue from ad sales reduces the cost of this book to students from last year's $40 to a more affordable $35. Hopefully, this price cut will make Never Too Late available to more students than ever.

Parents, thank you for your endless financial and moral support. I only hope that these specially-designed messages bring as much pride and happiness to you and your graduating seniors as this book has brought to us. And, of course, the businesses who contributed... we couldn't produce this book without your continued support.

And finally, a monster thank you goes out to everyone who trekked downtown and beyond to sell ads (especially Kristin, Holly, Katelynn, Derek and Mr. Hansen). Also Thank You to Mr. Pontes, Mr. Rosa, Mrs. Flaherty, Mr. Antolini, Mrs. Pierce, Mrs. Baptiste, and the custodial staff for all of their help and guidance.

Angela,

We are all very proud of you and hope that all of your dreams and wishes come true. Always be happy, keep a song in your heart, and keep that beautiful smile.

Love you.

Dad, Mom, and Family.

To our first grandchild, Sarah Marie, with much love and best wishes always for happy and prosperous future.
